In this sense, all Christian witness is a form of protest in the face of the world's death-dealing ways. Given that all authentic Christian witness is a form of protest, and given how replete the Bible is with explicit acts of protest, it is odd how many contemporary Christians are wary of such movements today.

There are two watershed issues for Christianity as you enter into the 21st century: The Truth of the Word of God and True Spiritual Reality. We are living in a time when we are told that experience determines truth. However, this is not the Christian position. You must maintain the Christian position that Truth determines your experiences.

"In the first century, Christians were crucified, burned, and thrown to the wild animals simply for proclaiming the name of Christ. This was a period of immense persecution, and if Christians wanted to survive, they had to hide out from the governing authorities." While there is some truth in this statement, it is certainly an overstatement.
