Yet, through Christ, God has graciously given us an opportunity to receive healing to our delicate hearts in a broken world. By Christ's parting gift of His Spirit, we are comforted in the most trying times and are given the divine strength to live another day in the joy that only God can give. A Prayer for a Broken Heart:

Prayer for a Broken Heart - Find Comfort & Healing

The Jewish people tear their garments when someone dies. They do so for two reasons. First, they do so because it became a way to express deep emotion without hurting oneself. More importantly, it was to show the heart, which was sad and broken by the death of a loved one. In the first reading today, the prophet Joel tells us to rend or tear our hearts, not our garments.

Broken Hearts - United Church of Christ

The world is full of people with broken hearts, broken spirits, and broken relationships. We see damaged goods all around us. And we see it in ourselves when we are courageous enough to go there. In fear of rejection, we'd rather cover up the damaged parts of our lives and work harder at putting our best pieces out front for others to see.
