Obstetrics & Gynecology employs a single-blind peer-review process in which the authors do not know the identity of the reviewers unless the reviewer voluntarily self-identifies. Starting in 2018, the journal is making efforts toward increasing transparency around the peer review process. This will occur in two areas (accepted articles, only):

Obstetrics & Gynecology

The review had a broad scope, encompassing low- and high-risk obstetrics, family planning, and general gynecology reflecting the wide reach of telehealth in women's health services. Although there was limited rigorous evidence supporting telehealth interventions in obstetrics and gynecology, we found some promising interventions deserving of clinical uptake and future study.
