Orthodox Christian Theology Creation Evolution

In short, evolution means that all life on earth shares a common ancestry which can be traced back to a single species. Orthodox Christians have divergent views on how to react to this development in science. In general Orthodox responses can be grouped into two large categories, which we might label Compatibilism and Incompatibilism.

Although biological evolution has been vocally opposed by some religious groups, many other groups accept the scientific position, sometimes with additions to allow for theological considerations. The positions of such groups are described by terms including "theistic evolution", "theistic evolutionism" or "evolutionary creation". Theistic evolutionists believe that there is a God, that God is ...

Acceptance of evolution by religious groups - Wikipedia

This view appears to be rooted in two tenets of orthodox Christian doctrine — God’s omnipotence and his unsurpassed wisdom. Howard van Till calls this evolutionary view of creation “fully gifted creation.”<sup>1</sup> It’s a creation that doesn’t need follow-up tinkering to generate life because, well, the creation is “fully gifted.”

The impasse of “Orthodox” evolutionism / OrthoChristian.Com

Theistic evolution, theistic evolutionism, evolutionary creationism, or God-guided evolution are views that regard religious teachings about God as compatible with modern scientific understanding about biological evolution. Theistic evolution is not in itself a scientific theory, but a range of views about how the science of general evolution relates to religious beliefs in contrast to special creation views. Supporters of theistic evolution generally harmonize evolutionary thought with belief i

Theistic evolution - Wikipedia

One reason Orthodox “fundamentalists” cite for rejecting evolution is that our theological sources presume an original perfection that has been lost. Eden has fallen. But evolutionary theory sees death and violence at the very beginning of the process of creation. These two narratives are not immediately compatible.

Evolution and Eastern Orthodoxy - David J Dunn

TL;DR: ultimately what Orthodox believe about evolution is irrelevant, because that is science, not theology. There is no dogma on evolution, because it is not an issue that affects the faith in anyway. Within Orthodoxy there are both Young Earth and Old Earth creationists. However, Orthodox Christianity is not a debate forum.

Genesis, Creation, and Early Man: Fr. Seraphim Rose ...

Creation is a theological issue, not a scientific issue. Theology is the only source from which we have any information about creation. Any study of creation must come in the framework of theology because it is a Word from God. Theology, by the way, used to be called the queen of the sciences.
