In the Victorian Era - specifically 1837 to 1901 - doctors treated woman by genital stimulation to induce "hysterical paroxysm" or an orgasm. This hysteria was supposed to be a build-up of fluid in the woman's womb and doctors assumed that since men ejaculated and felt better then it stood to reason.

Female hysteria - Wikipedia

A hysterical paroxysm was simply another ill-defined category of hysteria that can be found in nineteenth-century medical manuals; along with the hysterical coma, hysterical headaches, hysterical excitement, hysterical convulsive affections, and (of course) hysterical flatulence. But more than this, the Victorians knew what an orgasm was!
