The pseudonymous Nedjma's autobiographical story (published originally in French) follows a young Moroccan woman's sexual life—from adolescent lesbian explorations on to the passionate affaire de coeur of adulthood, along with the disastrous marriage in between. In rural Imchouk, where she was raised, teenaged Badra is married off to the town's notary, a middle-aged bore who has already renounced two wives for their failure to bear him a child.

Nedjma (Author of The Almond)

The Almond by Nedjma Translated from the French by C. Jane Hunter Grove Press, 2005 This book, according to its publishers, is about the sexual awakening of a young Arab woman. The woman in question is a 17-year girl from a traditional North African Berber village who after spending 5 years as wife #3 to a much older man in a terrible, loveless marriage, runs away to the big city of Tangiers to live with her fun-loving aunt Selma.

Lotus Reads: The Almond by Nedjma

In the prologue to The Almond, Nedjma declares, "My ambition is to give back to the women of my blood the power of speech confiscated by their fathers, brothers, and husbands." Despite this lofty claim, there can be little doubt that this book was not written for an Arab audience, but, rather, for Western readers, for those among them who will be suitably shocked at the catalog of horrors perpetrated on women, those who will be flattered when they are told that having "European skin ...
