Ombre is a shadowing technique used to seamlessly blend two colours, with hair generally being darker at the roots and gradually fade into a lighter shade towards the tips. While it sounds relatively similar to dip-dye, the aim of an ombre is to have no harsh lines between the two shades, making it a more elegant look.

Types of Hair Colour: 9 Colouring Techniques You Need to Know

Hair color is a matter of chemistry. The first safe commercial hair coloring product was created in 1909 by French chemist Eugene Schuller, using the chemical paraphenylenediamine. Hair coloring is very popular today, with over 75% of women coloring their hair and a growing percentage of men following suit. How does hair coloring work?

Hair Color Chemistry: How Hair Coloring Works

We can change our hair colour by choice through using hair dyeing products. Various chemical processes in hairdressing (like bleaching, tinting, neutralising) act on the natural pigments to change the hair's colour. However, hair colour can change for a variety of other reasons, including: Ageing can affect pigment production. As we age, melanin stops being made in our hair and new hairs grow without pigment, which is why they are white.
